

On The Fly

The Prez Sez by Ken Hofmeister

WE LEARN BEST WHAT WE TEACH

“The Club is dedicated to sharing its total fly fishing experience and developing interest in fly fishing in both fresh and salt water. It shall promote and teach both fly fishing and related subjects of fly tying, rod building, fly casting, and knot tying...” By-Laws of Suncoast Fly Fishers, Inc.

OK, that’s the purpose of Suncoast Fly Fishers. Sharing, promoting, and teaching is what we do when we’re not “helping members become more skilled, have more fun, and be more productive in the sport.”

In fly fishing, as most everything else, we learn best what we teach. The more we try to motivate others, the more enthusiastic we become. Some of my best learning experiences around fly tying came while staffing an SFF booth and sitting between and tying along with some veteran fly tiers. Listening to these members share tips and fish stories with the crowd has helped me absorb some good information. Lots of people have a fly rod stored in the closed (after a river ran through it) but have not had any success learning how to cast or catch fish on the fly rod. A little bit of encouragement and these people become visitors and members of SFF. Then, of course, they become compulsive addicts who buy stuff and harass the marine resources. They get so excited that they even renew their $15.00 annual SFF membership dues every September—ON TIME! They say: “Such a deal.”

In September-October, we have some outstanding opportunities to “share, promote, and teach” people about our sport. Here are a few:

FLORIDA SPORTSMAN SHOW—Florida State Fairgrounds-- September 26-27. SFF members will be staffing the FFF booth and flying both the SFF and FFF flags as we tie flies, tell lies, and “set the hook in some new fly fishers.” We’ll have great traffic from fishers and boaters. This year, we’ll also have fun conducting the kids casting contest sponsored by Zebco. Contact Woody Miller (727-560-6086), coordinator for this show, to volunteer. Or, sign up at the September meeting. Exhibitors get a free pass for a good show and informative seminars.

ART OF FLY FISHING FESTIVAL—Down Town Winter Haven—October 3rd. SFF members will be staffing an FFF table at this free event where some of Florida’s best wildlife artists and anglers will be showcased. Some of Florida’s best fly tying instructors will be teaching and demonstrating. A 100 foot casting pool will be the center of activities. Again, contact Woody Miller to join the SFF crowd going to Winter Haven.

FLORIDA COUNCIL: FEDERATION OF FLY FISHERS CONCLAVE—Ramada Inn Celebration—October 23-24. Conclave features over twenty five of the best fly tiers in the world, numerous speakers and programs, along with help from certified casting instructors (Pat Damico included). Cost is $10.00 for both days. SFF Project Healing Waters Fly Fishing volunteers will be wearing their PHWFF hats and staffing a PHWFF table, along with Diane Lopes. Here, we share our Bay Pines experience with other Florida clubs. Contact Pat Damico, PHWFF regional coordinator, to help with this booth. Check www.fff-florida.org/conclave.htm for more Conclave information and reservations. Ken

OUTINGS -REVIEWS & PREVIEWS by Richard Oldenski

September Outing - September 19, 2009 - Alligator Lake

August Outing - The fish were not eager to bite at Emerson Point, but we had a good time fishing with our friends from the Mangrove Coast Fly Fishing Club. We saw plenty of snook feeding, but they were not interested in our streamers. Sharks were also actively feeding in the Manatee River, which kept most of us fishing the flats. Our friends from the Mangrove Coast caught a few trout. The largest fish reported by our club was an eight inch grouper caught by Joe Dail. Members of both clubs mingled, told stories and made plans for future outings over a picnic lunch. You should have been there!

September Outing - Alligator Lake has been a favorite fishing spot for our club for many years. You can usually be sure to catch sunfish and an occasional bass, and you don't have to drive very far to get there. Located in Safety Harbor, the lake has a boat ramp that will accommodate small boats and provide a good launch for kayaks and canoes.

You can start fishing at sunrise or earlier. A tailgate lunch will be served by the boat ramp at 11:00 AM. Bring a folding chair.

There are many ways to get there. One is to get on McMullen-Booth Road and turn east on 10th St. S. 10th St. S. will curve and become 14th Ave. S. Then turn east on 7th. St. S. After you cross the railroad tracks, the entrance to Safety Harbor City Park and Alligator Lake will be on the right. Sign up and get a map at the meeting.

You will receive dues notification directly from FFF.

SFF dues are due in September. This is for the remaining months of 2009 and then through August of 2010. You are now notified that your SFF dues are due this month. Members whose dues are delinquent for 2 or more months may lose their SFF membership. See announcement and forms for renewal of SFF membership.

FLY TYERS

The 6:30 fly tying demonstration session prior to the meeting is a very popular feature. Members are always interested in new flies, different methods of tying old flies or just some well known fly that might not have been demonstrated in a while. Old tried and true patterns are new to new fly fishers and are very interesting to them. We need members who are willing to share their fly tying skills with your fellow members. If you would like to volunteer as a featured fly tyer, please see Myron Hansen at the meeting or call him at 727-393-5075.

WE GET BACK WHAT WE GIVE by Ken Hofmeister

We also learn best what we teach. Another way SFF members share, promote, and teach fly fishing is to participate in Project Healing Waters Fly Fishing events at Bay Pines VA hospital. A number of SFF volunteers teach vets to cast, tie flies, and have fun catching both fresh and saltwater fish from Bay Pines waters. Revised fall schedule:

2nd & 4th Tuesday: Dom group (5:00-6:30 p.m.) Contact John Craig to help.

2nd & 4th Tuesday: Physical Rehab group (5:00-6:30 p.m.) Contact John Craig.

1st & 3rd Wednesday: Steps of Life group (9:00-10:30 a.m.) Contact Terry Kirkpatrick.

2nd & 4th Wednesday: CLC Arts & Crafts group (10:30-11:30 a.m.) Contact Terry Kirkpatrick.

SFF members don't have to be certified casters or national known fly tiers to bring smiles to a vet who discovers the joys of tying and fly fishing on their recovery journey. Above picture portrays Les Scott, Terry Kirkpatrick, and John Craig helping vets master the art of fly casting in a Bay Pines pond.

Do Flies Always Work? by Capt. Pat Damico

When taking out clients, I often ask them about previous experience with guided trips. This information is very helpful and varies across the whole spectrum from very good, to poor. Recently, the answers were from clients telling me about two guided trips. In both cases they wanted to catch redfish on a fly. They started fishing with flies, but soon switched after being unsuccessful. One trip was in South Carolina, the other on Florida's west coast. Instead, they ended up fishing with shrimp and whitebait, and caught some fish. Why the switch? Is the reason there are times when fish will refuse flies and take only live bait? Yes, I'm sure there are instances when this is true. Could there be any other reasons why flies will fail? After getting more information, the reasons began to fall into a familiar pattern.

Most fly fisherman I know enjoy the challenge that fishing with the long rod presents. When they begin fly fishing they must also accept the journey that is necessary as they pursue success. What is success? Success to many fly fisherman I know is not measured in how many fish are caught, but by how they are caught. One nice fish on the fly could make the whole day a worthwhile event. Stalking the fish, making a perfect presentation with a fly that you have tied, seeing the take, setting the hook and finally bringing the fish to hand where it can be admired, and often released, all make for a successful outing. There are even times that fly fishing can outperform other fishing techniques. Catching freshwater trout in the middle of a mayfly hatch when the pattern is duplicated and well presented is one example. When snook are feeding at night on small baitfish, a fly that matches the hatch is very productive. The fly itself, many times, is a small part of the equation. When someone asks what fly pattern are you using, should he also ask how you are using it? Have you ever fished near someone, using identical equipment, who either out-fished you or you beat them by a large margin? Let's look at some reasons why flies may not be productive. We will begin with the guide.

If someone calls a guide and says they want to fly fish, very few guides will not take them as clients. It can be a decision based solely on economics. The guide may prefer to fish live bait or scented plastic spinning lures primarily, but without telling you this agrees to take you out. He may have a fly rod, or you bring your own equipment. This is your first saltwater fly fishing experience and you are understandably very excited. You've watched Lefty, Flip and others on Saturday morning make that perfect cast which resulted in instant success. You expect to do the same. The guide shows up with a tower boat and a livewell full of scales sardines, and a bunch of spinning rods with corks on the leader. How do you fly cast from a boat with a large tower in the middle, and what is the live bait doing there? My first saltwater "fly fishing trip," about twenty years ago started similarly, with a well respected guide. I had several phone conversations with the guide before our trip telling him I wanted to catch fish with a fly rod. One fly rod rigged with a freshwater muddler minnow sat in the rod holder all day while we threw spinning outfits with live shrimp. We did catch fish, but it was not what I wanted to do. He did say, "Right now, this is the best way to catch fish." Why, if he believed that, didn't he tell me on the phone, or refer me to a fly fishing guide?

In another instance, the guide takes you out and after a couple fishless stops with you casting your fly rod, he suggests that maybe we should switch to spinning gear for awhile. Let's say your casting skills were adequate, but the fish were holding close to the bottom in several feet of water, and a sinking fly on a clear sinking tip line would have worked. The guide's inexperience was of no help here. Or, the fish were tailing in shallow water and his boat did not have a shallow enough draft to allow a stealthy, closer approach. He didn't have a poling platform, or pole, which is needed under these circumstances, or you could have left the boat and approached the shallows by walking in the ankle deep water to get to the fish. A friend of mine who is a very busy live bait guide told me he never saw a tailing redfish. I frequently fish the same areas he does and we see them all the time. We usually wave to one another as he speeds by on his way to a "hole" where he anchors his boat and chums with stunned live greenbacks before beginning to fish his clients with baited hooks. I told him he never slows down long enough to watch the shallows for signs of tailers.

Under the above circumstances the guide may announce, "I fished a spot near here a few days ago, and we caught a bunch with shrimp." You go to the spot, anchor the boat, and instantly hook up with a live shrimp. We have some excellent fly patterns that duplicate shrimp. Why not use one of them? After catching several fish, you don't touch your fly rod for the rest of the trip. Was the fly pattern the reason for failure, or were your casting skills so poor that you couldn't get the fly close to where the fish were? Did you make sloppy presentations that frightened fish in shallow water, were you unable to cast in the wind, did you false cast over the fish and spook them, or a myriad of other reasons relating to your lack of casting skill? When fellow guides, that are also excellent fly fisherman, discuss recent trips with me, their success will always relate to how well their client could cast. They have some poor days when fish are scarce, but on some of their best days when fish are located, the casting skill of the client will determine how the day went.

If you are having some casting problems, and you are amenable to some helpful suggestions, can the guide analyze your cast and be of assistance? If your skills are so poor, how do you feel about spending most of your trip learning how to properly cast? The deck of a flats boat is not the place to learn to cast a fly rod. I have had clients who after a few minutes of instruction were able to improve their casting sufficiently to have a good day with the fly. Others were either so inexperienced, or couldn't admit that the problem was theirs, but rather some other reason, like the action of the rod, the brand of the rod, the rod's length, or weight, or something else.

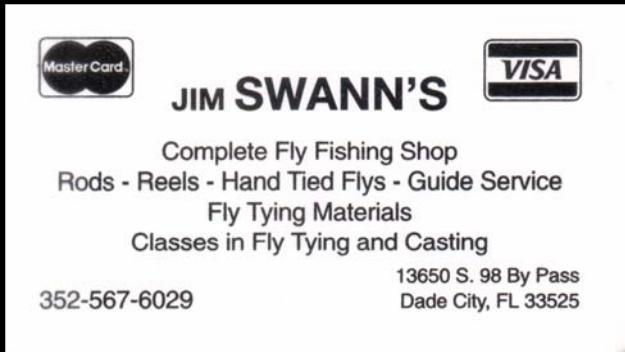

What can we do to insure that a fly fishing trip will have the best chance for success? Research the guide thoroughly? Study their website, have some candid conversations, or written communication with him, or her. Get some references. Be sure to explain your experience level. If you need to prepare yourself, sign up for a saltwater casting clinic, or get lessons from someone who is skilled in the areas you need help. The Federation of Fly Fishers has a casting certification program that is rigorous and will help narrow your choices of where to begin.

I began fly fishing at the age of ten. I enjoy the sport now more than ever. Many people have contributed to my continual learning experience in both fresh and saltwater. Saltwater fly fishing will definitely provide you with the most excitement available in our great sport. Take advantage of it by doing your homework

Fly Tying Bench—Whatever Bendback by Bill Smith

Whatever Bendback Minnow or Whatever You Have In Your Fly Tying Material Collection

This fly started as a Carl Hanson Bendback Glass Minnow on a Mustad 3407 hook. But because I kept making the wing too large, I was getting a lot of short strikes. So I went to a Mustad 34011 hook in sizes 1 and 2 with 15° bend in the shank about 3/16” behind the hook eye. Through time, I have always used a white bucktail wing, but now, depending on how I feel, I will change the topping and the body materials and the fish still eat it. Confidence in a fly is nine tenths of the game.

- Hook: Mustad 34011 sizes 1 and 2 (bend at 15°)
- Thread: Red
- Wing: White bucktail
- Body: Mono over aluminum foil; white chenille; white Estaz; silver sparkle braid; pearl sparkle braid; holographic silver chenille; etc. The choice is yours and the possibilities are endless.
- Over Wing: Green bucktail; peacock herl; dark green Flashabou; dark green holographic Flashabou.

Top: A typical Whatever Bendback Minnow
Bottom: A group of Bill's Whatever Bendback Minnows
Flies tied by Bill Smith

The main thing is, I don't get bored tying the same thing and I still catch fish.Bill

Editor's note: I think everyone knows the tying procedure for tying a Bendback Minnow, but if you are new to tying or just need a refresher, go to the SFF website www.suncoastflyfishers.com Click on "Fly Tying" and then select "Carl Hanson's Glass Minnow" or "Bendback" or "Prince Of Tides". They are all bendbacks and will take you through the steps.Paul

Fly Tying Bench - Predator by Paul Sequeira

What is your favorite bream fly? Currently mine happens to be the Foam Spider with the 1st runner-up being a #10 white or yellow popper. “Smitty” votes for his Crystal Beetle, and with good reason. All top water flies, where bream catching is the most fun, but did you ever hear of fishing a top water fly underwater?

Such a fly – the Morrisfoam Predator was originated by Skip Morris, a well-known custom rod builder, author, fly tyer and fly fisher from Portland, Oregon. Morris designed this fly for trout and bass. Fished on a full sinking line with a short leader, it rides just above the lake bottom on the retrieve and it catches trout and bass very effectively. To view step-by-step tying instruction pictures for the Morrisfoam Predator, go to:

<http://www.flyfishohio.com/predator.htm> The floating version described here, is tied much the same way.

As we all know, fly tyers are always seeing other possibilities with well-established flies. Chris Helms, a master creator of deer hair bass bugs, recognized that with a few material modifications, the Predator would make an excellent top water bream and bass fly. Chris was right; his top water version is an extremely effective fly.

Materials:

- Hook: Best tied on an extra long hook i.e. the 2x1 Mustad 9671
- Thread: 3/0 to match body color – very fine thread i.e. 6/0 tends to cut the foam
- Tail: (optional) a few very short pieces (about ½”) of Krystal Flash to compliment body color
- Body: Wapsi SLF (synthetic living fibers) dubbing in white, yellow, orange or fluorescent lime green
- Shellback: 2 mm thick closed cell foam to match body color
- Eyes: large plastic bead chain
- Legs: medium rubber, color to compliment body

Instructions:

1. Attach the thread with a jam knot about ¼” behind the hook eye and continue slightly down the hook bend in close even wraps. Return the thread to the starting point.
2. If you wish to use an optional tail, tie in 3 or 4 short pieces of Krystal Flash at the point on the bend before you make your return wrap to the starting point.
3. Tie a strip of closed cell foam to the top of the hook shank and wrap down the end of your thread wraps.
4. Spin some SLF dubbing on the thread and wrap forward to the original tie-in point. You want a fairly full body. Fold the foam over the top to make the shellback and tie off at your original tie-in point. Wrap the foam down tightly to just behind the hook eye. Do not cut off the excess foam.
5. Move the thread back slightly and tie in the plastic bead chain eyes with figure eight wraps.
6. Tie in at the mid-point, a pair of rubber legs (about 2” long each) on each side of the hook behind the eyes.
7. Spin on more SLF dubbing and wrap the head, covering the area where the eyes and legs are tied in.
8. Fold the foam back over the eyes and tie in behind the eyes.
9. Cut the excess foam to create a short tag on top of the fly.
10. Tie off the thread.

Dr. Connors also discussed methods of protection and how to recognize suspicious skin spots that should be examined by trained medical professionals. Photo: Paul Sequira

SFF Photo Gallery– Shell Creek One More Time

Fishing Charlotte County's Shell Creek with Ted Rich a few weeks ago, Myron Hansen caught this nice bass and bluegill among many other fish. Ted and Myron had a nice outing on this very picturesque stream.

SFF Photo Gallery– August 2009 Casting Clinic

Top: Part of the casting clinic group get instructions from Pat Damico, Certified FFF Casting Instructor. There was a little snafu when an unannounced bicycle race caused a shutdown of Ft DeSoto roads at 7:00 am. Fortunately some of our members arrived before the shutdown, Enver got around the shutdown in his boat (center left) and one of our members ferried a group in the back of his pickup (center right). Assisting Pat were: Enver Hysni, Charlie Most and Ken Doty. Members who took advantage of this excellent opportunity to improve their casting were: Jim Larson, Woody Miller, Joe Dail, John Craig, Walt Ruda, Tom Trukenbrod, Richard Oldenski, Rick Kelly, Tom Gadacz, Matt Orndorff, Ken Hofmeister, Pamela Shives, Ben Shives, Capt Hugh Copeland, Marilyn Copeland and Grandson Andrew.
